THE MONTHLY GUIDE TO SKY TELEVISION

July saw us announce our plans for expansion into five new regions, Hawkes Bay, Manawatu, Wanganui, Dunedin and Invercargill. This expansion will enable our signal to reach 750,000 homes in New Zealand. As we pass the 110,000 subscriber mark and look to the future it is important to explain to you, our customers, how the growth of SKY impacts on your subscription. The simple answer is that as we grow together, we are in a position to reinvest in programming and therefore enhance the value of your membership to SKY. Recent examples of this includes our coverage of both the British Lions and Western Samoan rugby tours and the introduction of the "Perigo Live" programme in August. The future promises to be equally exciting for sports' fans. We've confirmed live coverage of the All Blacks tour of Scotland and England and exclusive live coverage of 45 of the 52 games in the Soccer World Cup in June and July next year.

In September, the world's best Rugby League competition culminates in the Winfield Cup Grand Final at the Sydney Football Stadium. In line with our exclusive live coverage since the season began, we plan to bring you all the LIVE action of the preliminary finals games and of course the Big One.

Over the next couple of months the number of fellow subscribers will increase through our Instant Install campaigns. During this period if you recommend a friend to SKY and they become a subscriber we will credit your account with $50, so do not hesitate to tell your friends about our three channels of entertainment for all the family.

We have some exciting promotions for subscribers planned for October and November. These include the chance to win a Mitsubishi car and the opportunity to win trips to the beautiful Sunshine Coast in Queensland, Australia. Watch your October SkyWatch for full details.

This month marks the departure from SKY of our Director of Programming, Harold Anderson. Harold has been responsible for the quality of programming that SKY has delivered since the launch and has played a signficant role in changing the TV viewing habits of all SKY subscribers. Harold is moving to Hong Kong to head ESPN Asia and we wish him well.

On 22 November 1963 the United States of America was changed forever as a nation. That sunny afternoon, the country's innocence was shattered, society altered and its political destiny changed. The assassination of President John F Kennedy had a dramatic effect on people throughout the world. The drama still exists because of continuing controversy over who killed JFK.

Cadbury
PREMIERE GOLD MOVIE

Story by Jane Parlane

o killed JFK?

A recent Gallup poll of Americans shows 73% are convinced the 1964 Warren Commission, which concluded the assassination was by lone gunman Lee Harvey Oswald, was wrong. Most people believe there was a conspiracy.

The movie JFK chronicles New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison's investigation into President Kennedy's assassination as detailed in his 1988 book "On The Trail of the Assassins". It also takes in theories expounded in Jim Marr's book "Crossfire - The Plot That Killed Kennedy".

Oliver Stone, director of Salvador, Wall Street, Platoon and Born on the Fourth of July never does things by halves. JFK, a "trial by camera", took away two Golden Globes for Best Director and the film is still classed as the United States' most controversial today.

A stack of movie greats helped Stone pack a powerful punch. With Kevin Costner, Gary Oldman, Tommy Lee Jones, Donald Sutherland, Ed Asner, Sissy Spacek, Jack Lemmon, Joe Pesci and Kevin Bacon backing Stone's conspiracy theory, it was a surety the movie would become a blockbuster.

Evidence of a conspiracy is built with a collage of newsreel footage, amateur film and modern technique. He works in the fascination of the Kennedy clan with their almost royal hold over the American public in the 1960s.

Stone's extremely rosy-tinted view of Kennedy probably reflects that of most Americans of his generation.

The film follows the efforts of Jim Garrison (Kevin Costner) as he runs his own investigation into the assassination.

An intriguing although long (3 hours) plot - the outstanding feature is the camera action and its great mix of black and white, colour, archival and modern footage. The results are dramatic - particularly the recreation of Kennedy's last ride in Dallas.

The belief that there were several hitmen is based on the unique film footage known as the Zapruder film. Frame 226 showed Kennedy clutching his throat and looking puzzled, while John Connally's mouth was open as if howling in pain. But the second "hit" frame (frame 313) showed Kennedy's head exploding in a shower of blood and brains.

Several conspiracy theories are advanced in JFK, with Mafia, Cuban and Russian possibilities all thrown into the hot pot as are assassination, cover-up and coup d'état. Politics or big business bucks, what was behind it all? JFK is thought-provoking and, while certainly mixing fact and fiction, definitely hit home where it still hurts the American people.

US Congress members were given a private showing in December 1991, organised by Warner Bros. As a result there has been heavy pressure to release all of the sealed records from the 1977 House Select Committee on the assassination investigation.

And there was public amazement (stimulated by JFK's release) a few months ago when John Connally, Texas Governor at the time of the assassination, died - and his widow refused to allow an autopsy. Connally died with the bullet which apparently had zig-zagged through two bodies - his and Kennedy's - still lodged in his body.

The movie is really Stone's epitaph to JFK.

"JFK is our alternative myth to the Warren Commission myth, an opportunity for people to rethink history," he said. "I hope the film inspires them to be politically active, determined to shape a better future, to improve upon the past. These are my fondest wishes."

Dreams and Fears

Inspired by "every woman's dreams and fears" the movie Deceived was born on location in Toronto in 1991.

This movie has as its essence the question, 'When you find someone to love, when do you trust that you really know the person?' says screenwriter Mary Agnes Donoghue.

A psychological thriller, Deceived examines the disintegration of trust in a relationship with Goldie Hawn playing Adrienne, the deceived woman in the plot.

Seeing Hawn in a 'serious' film is always a surprise. And in this thriller horror, the 48-year old actress once again picks the wrong mate (remember The Sugarland Express and Private Benjamin?).

Hollywood's favourite 'dizzy blonde', Goldie Hawn, is really a very tough lady, who started as a topless go-go dancer more than 20 years ago and is now a star-cum-executive producer who recently commanded a US$30 million deal with Disney for seven pictures.

Hawn fits well with the part of Adrienne because she has a lot of compassion for men facing the struggles of growing to manhood. This feeling made it easy for her to believe in her husband, Jack (John Heard). She could understand where he was coming from and this is probably why their sparring on screen is so brilliant.

She also looks great. Hawn believes it is very important to keep your beauty fresh. "If one needs a facelift, get it", she says. She believes feeling good can be vital in retaining that all-important quest for life.

Hawn found stability in her own life with actor Kurt Russell (Backdraft) nine years ago, following two failed marriages with director Gus Trikonis and singer Bill Hudson. The couple met on the set of Swing Shift, a World War II comedy-drama. They decided not to marry because Hawn feels men are more fragile when married to very successful women. Hawn won an Academy award for the best supporting actress in Cactus Flower in 1969 and has starred in a string of movies since, including the box office hit Private Benjamin which she also produced. She has also had her own television shows Pure Goldie and Goldie and the Kids.

Deceived she says she chose because it tells a great story.

"Adrienne is an interesting personality to play because she's living in a world that doesn't exist. It's fascinating to explore this successful woman."

HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD

What's Going Down In Tinseltown

Elderly superstar KIRK DOUGLAS is joining his son MICHAEL in the Fox comedy titled Greed (though the name may be changed so that people do not confuse it with the 1924 silent film). Rumour has it that Kirk may retire from acting soon to become a full time writer. His second novel, "The Gift", continues to be a bestseller and his newest one, "Last Tango in Brooklyn" should be on the stands by spring.

For fans who were looking forward to some steamy sex between MICHELLE PFEIFFER and JACK NICHOLSON in Mike Nichol's new film Wolf, forget it! Besides the fact that The Joker's body is no longer taut and trim, the stars were simply not willing to appear au naturel. They believe that explicit sex scenes are not necessary to bring fans to the film, and if it is neither Nicholson nor Pfeiffer are interested in making the movie.

The ROBERT F KENNEDY family is furious with USA cable for their recent 'fictional account of an alleged romance' titled Marilyn & Bobby: Her Final Affair. The adult Kennedy children are seeking legal advice on the matter and have released a statement: "Nothing that has appeared in the last quarter century has been as offensive as this outrageous production. This lie debases the memory of our father. It despoils history. It corrupts the medium called television."

Singers MARKY MARK and MADONNA have had a major falling out, and all plans to do a sexy video together have been cancelled. The reason? Mark made a loud and very homophobic remark about one of Madonna's pals, causing a huge scene between the two artists that ended bitterly. It's rumoured that because of all this, Mark's contract with CALVIN KLEIN (underwear) is being quietly cancelled.

Actress ELIZABETH TAYLOR continues to be very ill with yet another bout of pneumonia. The 61-year old star has been forced to cancel a number of appearances benefiting her AIDS foundation because of this. Fans will recall that Taylor nearly died from a lung condition two years ago.

Comedian CAROL BURNETT is trying once again to launch her own TV show, Burnett. In recent years, the 1970s sitcom star has been having career problems because her style of slap-stick comedy hasn't been in demand for many years now. But those who have seen the CBS pilot say it's very funny. Burnett plays a veteran soap opera diva who finds she must act opposite her ex-husband, played by ADAM WEST.

Evening Shades star BURT REYNOLDS now admits that he was unfaithful to ex-wife LONI ANDERSON. The couple split after Reynolds suddenly filed for divorce. At that time he said he had not been involved with anyone else. Now it seems he's gone public about his romance with cocktail waitress PAM SEALS and claims that it happened because his marriage was 'an empty shell'. Seals is now with Reynolds in Los Angeles while he works on a new block of Shade shows.

Child star MACAULAY CULKIN is changing his image on screen. The 12-year old actor is playing an evil and malevolent kid in The Good Son. Because of the violent hijinks on screen, this will be the first time Culkin's work is R-rated. Co-starring is ELIJAH WOOD, who plays the orphaned boy who is forced to live with Culkin's family and deal with his strange cousin.

There are strong rumours that actress HEATHER LOCKLEAR and husband, musician TOMMY LEE of Motley Crue, are splitting. Insiders say that Locklear is tired of hearing stories about her husband having a good time with the ladies after hours. Like most bands, Motley Crue has a huge following of groupies, so keeping on the straight and narrow has been hard for Lee, or so his pals say.

Actor LUKE PERRY of TV's Beverly Hills, 90210 is being considered for honorary membership of America's Potbellied Pig Interest Group and Shelter (P.I.G.S.). The reason? Perry has fought and won the right to keep his three Vietnamese potbellied pigs. The star lives in the suburb of Tarzana, and had to formally request permission from the City of Los Angeles to keep them as pets. Because the star has won, despite protesting neighbours, this now means other pig lovers can demand the same rights.

Old timer comedian BOB HOPE is on a legal 'hot seat' these days. It seems some documents have been found in Pennsylvania that indicate Hope was married to his vaudeville partner GRACE TROXELL. So, what's the big deal? Well, the question is how was he able to wed DOLORES READE (his wife for over 50 years) 13 months later. In those days, getting a divorce was almost if not impossible. Any comment from Hope's publicist? Yes: "There's a mystery about it and it's going to remain a mystery."

When the Brisbane Broncos hijacked the 1992 Winfield Cup and headed home to Queensland, most league fans living south of the River Tweed sneered that they won it by default.

1992 Champions, Brisbane Broncos

RUGBY LEAGUE WEEK

Darren Hadland, Assistant Editor
Rugby League Week

It's Fina

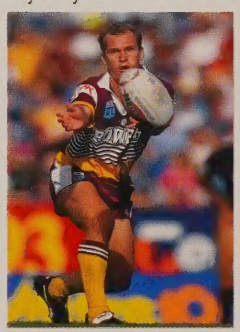
This year it is different. Brisbane are in there shooting for back-to-back titles but there are some awfully big guns pointed in their direction. And if the Broncos do make it a winning double, there can be no denying their championship qualities this time.

Champions in any sport are measured by the weight of their challenger...rugby league is no different. Vindication for last year's success is something very much on the Broncos' minds as the finals quickly approach.

John Lomax

Grand Final day, September 26 this season, is very much a festival for the game. With State of Origin, it is the biggest day in Australia's domestic rugby league season, and having Canberra and Brisbane in contention has added an extra edge to this year's semi-final series.

Bolstered by New Zealand test forwards Quentin Pongia and John Lomax, Canberra have everybody looking over their shoulders. With Bradley Clyde recuperating in the wings, the Raiders have re-emerged as a glamour team of the Winfield Cup.



Allan Langer

Along with Brisbane, they have a monopoly on the game's richest talent. A grand final featuring Mal Meninga, Ricky Stuart, Laurie Daley, Bradley Clyde, Allan Langer, Steve Renouf, Glenn Lazarus and Willie Carne et al would be the greatest celebration imaginable for Australian rugby league. But there will be plenty of pitfalls before that classic confrontation takes shape.

Brisbane rolled over St George 28-8 last season. But the Saints with their meticulous style, that was

ls Time

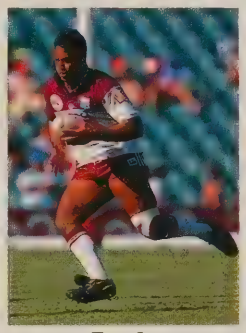
Jason Donnely

hardened by last year's grand final loss, are substantially better equipped to handle Brisbane and Canberra in this year's series.

Jarrod McCracken

Canterbury, too, have their eyes on the prize. Bouyed by news that Jarrod McCracken's ankle wasn't broken after all, the Bulldogs have recovered sufficiently from their recent hiding at the hands of Brisbane to again press their claims. The Bulldogs, after the off-season recruitment of Englishman Gary Connolly and Martin Bella, Jim Dymock, Scott Wilson and Jim Serdaris from Winfield Cup clubs have assembled a potent strike force to complement the irrepressible Terry Lamb. Few have forgotten their demolition of Brisbane in Auckland earlier this year.

The young and exuberant Manly and the experienced and sturdy Norths, currently fighting for fifth place, are capable of upsetting the apple cart, too.



Tony Iro

However, the Winfield Cup finale goes beyond the football. It has become a big end-of-season bash, with rock bands, sky divers, television personalities and plenty of excitement and colour in a day that kicks off in the early morning and finishes late afternoon.

Tina Turner will play a part in launching the big day in 1993 and there will be a feast of surprises as the drama of the matches unfold.

Kiwis, too, have played their part in deciding the destiny of the Winfield Cup with Darrell Williams (Manly in 1987) and Brent Todd (Canberra 1989 and 1990) coming to Australia to lift the big prize.

If any evidence was needed about what grand final day means to Australians, just recall the intensity of the celebrations when Langer led his boys home...and every man and his dog predicted a Broncos title.

This year, with a few more doubts thrown in, the joy of victory will be even sweeter.

Hunting in Steely Waters

Story by Bob South
Editor Fish & Game New Zealand

Standing knee-deep in a river, rod in hand, casting endlessly and often blindly to a trout hardly seems the most idyllic pastime. Yet to those who flyfish, it is an experience of orgasmic proportions, particularly when a wild, fresh fish consumes your fly and flees in terror.

Over 200,000 anglers annually indulge in freshwater fishing, including more than 100,000 whose specific passion is flyfishing for the many rainbow and brown trout which make this country's inland fishery so internationally acclaimed and admired.

Flyfishing is an ancient pursuit, steeped in history and forever enshrined in literature. American novelist Zane Grey popularised flyfishing here in 1927 when he fished the famous Tongariro River, then wrote a book entitled "Tales From A Fisherman's Log", about his adventures and incredible angling success.

But so comparably small and cliquey is New Zealand's flyfishing fraternity - of the one million who fish in New Zealand only 10% flyfish - it's easy to wonder what exactly makes the sport so precious to its followers. Is it the peacefulness of the exercise, the breathtaking environment in which flyfishers practice their love while being at one with nature, or is it simply some fetish that borders on religious fanaticism?

American outdoor writer Robert Travers candidly suggests flyfishing worldwide is at once 'profitable and comforting to the individuals who cherish it, but what makes us want to spend a lot of time at it is not because flyfishing is so important, but because everything else we do is equally unimportant.'

Norman McLean, author of recent bestseller "A River Runs Through It" reckons 'flyfishing is a world created apart from all others inside which are special worlds of their own.'

In reality, flyfishing fundamentally is nothing more than a basic sport featuring man, skilled or unskilled in his craft as he may be, fulfilling some instinctive primeval urge to hunt - albeit in the case of flyfishing this is accomplished in more classical pose and arguably with considerably less efficiency than, say bait fishing, or netting. But nevertheless, it is sport.

Beyond this fundamental position of being sport however, flyfishing, particularly in New Zealand, is also a huge industry. Because New Zealand has such a rich resource and this unparalleled network of rivers, lakes, tarns and backcountry streams naturally supporting a trout population noteworthy for overall numbers and remarkable average size, flyfishing also is big business. More than $100 million is generated by flyfishing annually, either in tourist dollars or in revenue directly related to trout fishing.

This country's international reputation then encourages local flyfishermen and anglers the world over to pursue trophy trout. And unlike so many areas round the globe today, these flyfishers can cast their imitation insects and lures into pristine, unpolluted waters trickling or raging through native bush and, if they're lucky or good enough or both, almost be guaranteed a sizable reward.

Grey once called New Zealand a flyfisherman's El Dorado. He wasn't wrong.

SIDE LINES

by Bill O'Flannery

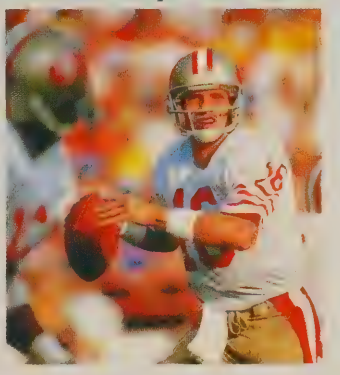
The Winfield Cup! As they say in the old country "September sorts out the men from the boys". Was it my brother Shaun who predicted in June that North Sydney, who were then leading the competition, would not make the play-offs?

It has been a great season - another exciting State of Origin, a tight Anzac test series and great play week after week from defending champions Brisbane. Meanwhile down the bottom of the ladder - no surprises in both Cronulla and Balmain appointing new coaches for 1994 and it's interesting to reflect that it was as early as June that Newcastle lost last year's hero John Schuster through injury.

The question on everyone's lips is whether Brisbane can make it back to back championships? It would take a brave man to underestimate their chances of achieving this remarkable feat.

In rugby the National Provincial Championship, which underlines the real strength of rugby union in New Zealand, is in full swing. This competition gives the many outstanding players at provincial level in this country a chance to show their talent. We at SKY are delighted to be covering a significant number of these matches exclusively LIVE. Time will tell whether Wellington under coach David Kirk can make the final four and whether Waikato are destined to again contest the final.

With the start of the NFL season, the Superbowl still seems a long way off. But in five short months the two best teams from the National and American Conferences will line up in Atlanta, Georgia for the game of games. Can the San Francisco 49er's go one better and make it this season? You can see all the NFL action this season on SKY Sport.



The Formula 1 motor racing circus continues on its unique globe trotting way with Alain Prost showing the rest of his profession that he is still the "little master" with some outstanding driving. Let's hope there is still plenty of interest left for the championship by the time they get to Adelaide for the Australian Grand Prix in November.

An O'Flannery prediction - the Auckland Warriors forward lineup for its inaugural game in early 1995 will read - Roberts, Mann, Hill, Kearney, Vagana and Nikau!

The SKY Sport Channel is presenting some outstanding sporting events this month, a unique blend of the world of sport - enjoy.

Perigo Live

WHAT'S BEHIND THE RHETORIC, THE POSTURING AND THE HYPE.

You've heard the rhetoric, the posturing and the hype. Now find out what they really think.

Last November Lindsay Perigo, arguably New Zealand's most intelligent and capable interviewer, vacated our television screens.

Content with the high standard of his morning radio programme on BBC World Service, Perigo did not envisage returning to television until approached by SKY Television last month.

After concise negotiations, the idea of "Perigo Live" became the reality of a weekly current affairs half-hour programme involving high-quality debate with selected guests.

The first "Perigo Live" went to air on August 16th and, abecause the show is essentially election driven, the last in this series will screen just after the election, sometime in late November or early December.

Lindsay Perigo sees his new programme "Perigo Live" on SKY as filling a huge void. He says there is a need for informed debate on New Zealand television, which was not being met, not even when he worked on Counterpoint.

Perigo believes "change is occurring rapidly in this country and one of the choices an enlightened media might make is to thoroughly discuss those changes so people understand what's going on. When did you last see any informed debate on television over the amendment to the Human Rights Bill, for instance? Have you seen anything about the new censorship laws? The debate on privatisation has dried up completely. Yet these are all subjects that affect the lives of all New Zealanders and they should have access to intelligent canvassing of the motives and visions of those who are activating the changes.

"Current affairs as a subject has been hijacked by the sensationalists, those who would engage your emotions rather than your brain. If emotional and sensational television is what some people want to see then that's fine, but it's not current affairs, so don't call it that.

"Serious current affairs need not be dull. With the right guests and lively questioning in a friendly environment, rather than confrontational head-banging, current affairs can both inform and entertain.

Perigo applauds SKY Television's decision to move into this area.

"The phone-in time allowed for viewers adds another dimension to the programme as well. It's not being treated simply as a voting opportunity, but a chance for viewers with reasonable queries to put them directly to the guests."

BEST OF THE MONTH
by Andrew Dallaston

BOYZ N THE HOOD
1991 RP16 107 min Sept 8,23(S)

In the US today, one black man out of every 23 is murdered, usually by another black man. This grim statistic looms large behind the film Boyz N the Hood, a realistic and powerfully disturbing view of a South Central Los Angeles neighbourhood.

It's not the slums of New York, or the back streets of Chicago. It's a suburban area, like many in New Zealand, with low cost housing, high unemployment, many solo parent families and a major gang problem. It's where 23-year old John Singleton grew up. Singleton wrote and directed Boyz N the Hood, and he brings to this, his first major movie, real knowledge and conviction.

The title is taken from a rap number by artist Ice Cube, who also stars in the film as Doughboy and wrote a good deal of the music. We first meet Doughboy, his brother Ricky and their friend Tre Styles as young boys but already the patterns are set. Doughboy is aggressive and involved in petty crime. Ricky is backward but keen on football and Tre is bright and rebellious but has the big advantage of a loving, responsible father (Larry Fishburne).

The body of the action occurs when the friends are in their late teens, struggling towards manhood. Tre is doing well at school, Ricky's in line for a football scholarship, while Doughboy has a prison record and is caught up in the senseless cycle of gangland violence and revenge. But the sickness of the 'Hood' all too often spreads to the innocent and well-meaning.

Boyz N the Hood is a serious movie. The language and violence are authentic and offensive but never gratuitous. This is not another film which revels in gang shoot-outs and police action, but rather an informed study of a diseased society, a disease from which our cities in Godzone are by no means immune.

Director: John Singleton.

CURLY SUE
1991 GY 101 min Sept 4,9,20,26(S)

This is the story of two vagrants Bill Dancer (James Belushi) and Curly Sue (Alisan Porter), bumming their way around the USA, living on their wits.

They run into high powered woman lawyer Grey Ellison (Kelly Lynch), or rather, she runs into Bill twice with her Mercedes.

While patching up Bill and cleaning up Sue in her luxury apartment, the icewoman's heart is melted and whose wouldn't be? Little Alisan registers at least 10 on the Shirley Temple cuteness scale with hair Rachel Hunter would envy and remarkable acting talent as well.

Curly Sue is pure schmaltz but perhaps with so many bitter and twisted films about, a sweet, romantic fantasy makes a nice change. Written, directed and produced by John Hughes who was also responsible for Home Alone, The Breakfast Club, Ferris Bueller's Day Off, Planes, Trains and Automobiles, She's Having a Baby and Uncle Buck.

James Belushi, Kelly Lynch, Alisan Porter.
Director: John Hughes.

TAKING CARE OF BUSINESS
1990 GA 103 min Sept 12,20,25(S)

James Belushi is Jimmy Dworski, a small time con whose two passions are car theft and base-ball. Jimmy has won tickets to the World Series baseball but although he's about to be released from prison the next day, the sadistic warden (Hector Elizondo) won't allow Jimmy his once in a lifetime chance to see the Chicago Cubs in the final. So, with the help of the other inmates, Jimmy arranges an ingenious escape.

Meanwhile Spencer Barnes (Charles Grodin) is in another sort of prison. He's an advertising account executive, a workaholic whose whole life is run from his daily planner and who has no time for his wife (Veronica Hamel) or himself. On an important business trip Spencer leaves his daily planner at the airport where it's found, complete with cash, credit cards, a key to a Malibu mansion etc by the escaped Jimmy. It's a prince and the pauper situation as Jimmy steps into Spencer's designer shoes and Spencer is mugged, arrested and worst of all, forced to rely on an infuriating former school friend.

Belushi, who seems to have specialized in playing likable slobs, obviously revelled in the part of an ordinary Joe who suddenly finds himself in luxury's lap, driving a Rolls and sharing a spa pool with the big boss' gorgeous young daughter. His enthusiasm is infectious and the scenes where Jimmy deals with sycophantic executives and Japanese businessmen are the comic highlights of the film.

James Belushi, Charles Grodin.
Director: Arthur Hiller.

V.I. WARSHAWSKI
1991 RP13 85 min Sept 5,14,22(S)

Here's a good old fashioned 'whodunnit' with a tough, smart private eye, who enjoys a drink, some sex on the side and can dish out the rough stuff if necessary. The difference is that detective V.I. Warshawski happens to be a very beautiful woman, none other than Kathleen Turner (Body Heat, Romancing the Stone, Accidental Tourist, War of the Roses).

V.I. is so infuriated with her womanising reporter boyfriend that she picks up a handsome ice hockey player, Boom Boom Gra-falk. But before Boom Boom can live up to his name he's mur-dered and V.I. finds herself protecting his 13-year old daughter Kat and investigating the crime.

If V.I. were a man, the film would be pretty standard stuff, but having a strong, confident, competent woman playing the hero gives the movie an extra dimension. Director Jeff Kanew explains, "This movie deals with how a woman fits into what is traditionally a man's world, how men react to women based on a lot of suppositions...and how V.I. Warshawski is constantly knocking down those walls."

Based on a series of mystery novels by Sara Paretsky, V.I. Warshawski provides good characters, an interesting plot, humour, action and an exciting finish.

Kathleen Turner, Jay O Sanders, Charles Durning.
Director: Jeff Kanew.

LONGTIME COMPANION
1990 RP13 96 min Sept 26,30

For too long films have portrayed gay men as effeminate, laugh-at-the-fairy caricatures but here is a frank, funny and poignant film about the gay community facing the threat of AIDS.

Longtime Companion focuses on a group of gay men in New York, three couples in particular, who are good friends and all intelligent, attractive, charming people. The film begins at the start of the 80s when a new mystery disease appears on the scene. At first it's thought to be some rare form of cancer but then the pieces of the AIDS puzzle (which has still not been solved) begin to come together.

The impact on the community is enormous. Relationships come under extreme pressure and the entire group feels in a state of siege, like people in a city about to be bombed.

The movie proceeds in jumps of several years at a time. An older gay couple discover one has the disease. Two years later he's dying and his partner nurses him at their home, right to the frightful end, with total tenderness and devotion. Longtime Companion offers real insight to the pain of all those involved, including those without AIDS.

If you suffer from homophobia don't watch this film, it will only make you angry and it's too good for that. But if you can put aside prejudice you'll experience a different and very moving love story.

Stephen Caffrey, Patrick Cassidy, Brian Cousins.
Director: Norman Rene.

ANOTHER YOU
1991 GA 91 min Sept 19,28

Another You brings together a great comic team for the fourth time - Gene Wilder and Richard Pryor. Their three previous films, Silver Streak, Stir Crazy and See No Evil, Hear No Evil were all highly successful, grossing over $215,000,000 at the box office.

In this new jaunt, Wilder plays George, who has been in a sanatorium for three years being treated for his pathological lying. He can't help himself. Under pressure wild, extravagant stories flow from his lips getting him into all sorts of trouble.

Pryor plays Eddie Dash, a professional liar, con man and thief, who has been sentenced to do community services work, helping a patient rehabilitate in the community. Of course Eddie is assigned George and the fun begins.

George is mistaken for missing millionaire Abe Fielding and after a few moral misgivings, lies his way magnificently into the role. Eddie's eyes light up with dollar signs as he encourages George and steals the silverware.

But there's a twist. The con man's being conned, the liar's being lied to, the whole thing's a set up. How can these two misfits extricate themselves from a very tangled web of deception, especially now that George has fallen in love with Abe's wife. Or is she just another part of the lie?

If you're in the mood for a laugh, throw your honesty and incredulity out the window and enjoy two very gifted comedians at work.

Richard Pryor, Gene Wilder, Mercedes Ruehl.
Director: Maurice Phillips.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED
Also well worth watching, our two other Saturday Golds, JFK and Deceived, both reviewed earlier in SkyWatch. Keep an eye out for Proof, an award-winning Aussie drama starring Kiwi actor Russell Crowe.

Our Nostalgia at Noon slot offers old movie buffs a chance to recall the beauty of Rita Hayworth in a season of her finest films. There's a different Rita Hayworth premiere every Sunday, plus a special look at her life in a documentary called Crazy About the Movies.

For Mel Brooks fans there's his recent comedy hit Life Stinks and for the kids a new action series Mission Top Secret. Enjoy.

IT'S THE NINTENDO GAME THAT BECAME A MOVIE...INTRODUCING

Good News for Nintendo Fans!

Super Mario Bros is a family fun movie especially for the schoolholidays. It opens this month at Hoyts cinemas throughout New Zealand. And see The Making of Super Mario Bros on SKY, 8.35pm 8 September and 5.00pm 16 September.

It's a Nintendo game, and with more than 82 million copies sold it's the most popular video game in the world. And now it's a movie.

This is Super Mario Bros. The first movie to be based on a video game instead of the other way round. And the game's influence shows up all over the place - in the characters, on neon-lit signs, in graffiti, and in many other surprising places. In fact there are more than a hundred game elements in the film waiting to be counted by keen-eyed and dedicated fans.

In this new Super Mario Bros movie, Bob Hoskins and John Leguizamo play Mario and Luigi, the world's best-loved plumber brothers caught up in the wildest game they've ever played. The dinosaurs, who never actually died out but are living in their own fantastic universe near New York, need to join their crazy reptile world to ours. The tyrannical dinosaur leader, Koopa (Dennis Hopper), has his own evil plans, and only Mario and Luigi - and their plumbing skills - can stop him.

It's a crazy, amazing adventure in another dimension. But for Mario and Luigi, it ain't no game.

From the depths of the earth a vast rumbling erupts. The volume increases and an awesome sound is heard. With the unmistakable revving of massed Harleys, the tortured screaming of thrashing guitars, and the growling howls of ten thousand lost souls - Meat Loaf has returned at last.

This is "Bat Out of Hell II: Back Into Hell". The result of a continuing collaboration with Jim Steinman, it's an album that's been in secret gestation since 1989.

But Meat Loaf is more than just hit albums. He made his mark as an actor in the Broadway production of Hair way back in 1969. He subsequently appeared in a number of stage shows and a string of feature films including, most recently, Leap of Faith and Wayne's World.

But despite his extensive film experience, Meat Loaf has never lost his love for the concert stage and comes to Auckland ready to give everything he's got.

"On tour is where I'm most comfortable," he says. "I want to have the best show in the world, give real value for the money, and I'm willing to work my butt off for it."

"I don't want you to understand what I'm feeling, I want you to understand what you're feeling."

Svengali in Sunglasses

Story by Selwyn Parker

Let's blame it all on Nick Bollettieri. He's the mask-faced man, always behind sunglasses, in the stands at the Grand Slam tournaments, who produced Aaron Krickstein, André Agassi and Monica Seles, who is partly responsible for Jim Courier's game, and who is nurturing a galaxy of future stars like the 11-year old Soviet kid, Anna Kournikova.

After his pupils have won or lost, Bollettieri provides them with with a thorough analysis of their performance on a pink slip. What the pink slip says is between the coach and the player. But you can be sure of one thing, the slip doesn't say, "Get to the net more often."

That's because Bollettieri has devised a new kind of tennis game. Basically, it involves only half the court. The back half, that is. And as US Open time comes around again, it will be the Bollettieri tactic - the pink slip game - that will likely prevail.

Consider the statistics. Pete Sampras, not a typical Bollettieri baseliner, but also a one-time protégé is No. 1 in the ATP rankings. Courier, who used to hit up with Agassi is No. 2.

Courier, who likewise comes to the net with reluctance, has disputed the last three grand slam finals - Australian Open, French Open and Wimbledon. Sampras has disputed two of the last four - US Open and Wimbledon. Courier won in Australia, lost in France. Sampras lost at the US Open, and won at Wimbledon.

The way that Stefan Edberg, beaten by Courier in Australia and swept aside in the Wimbledon semi-finals doesn't say much for the future of the classic serve-and-volley game. So you have to ask: Can an American and a Bollettieri graduate NOT win the men's US Open?

In women's tennis Seles, a committed baseliner, has won both the US and Australian Opens before being attacked. And though Steffi Graf, winner at Wimbledon over determined serve-and-volley exponent Jane Novotna, isn't a Bollettieri protégé, she has the same distant relationship with the net as Agassi.

It's not as though these wonderful players can't play the net. They can. But somewhere in a backroom over a computer, Bollettieri has crunched the numbers and deduces that baseline percentage play is what wins in the end. Attack the serve, hit long and hard, cover the baseline like a sprinter, let your opponent foul up. And when it's your turn, bomb them with a 200km/h-plus serve.

A victory for Agassi would be a promoter's dream, but it is unlikely. Like Seles a few years back, Agassi has split with his mentor. Or perhaps it's the other way around. Anyway, no more pink slips from Bollettieri. You might also have noticed how tubby Agassi was at Wimbledon. For a lavishly-paid professional sportsman, his condition was a disgrace.

The 23-year old, jewel-studded Las Vegas based Agassi has been consulting John McEnroe more than he has Bollettieri. "I gave more of my life to Andre than I did to any other student," says the saddened Svengali. Agassi had been with the coach since he was a teenager, joining the academy after the tennis lessons he was getting from his father Mike became backyard battles.

Now, a private jet or two later, it's a parting of the ways. But there might be a bright side. McEnroe is a serve-and-volley exponent and some of that net-playing expertise might have rubbed off.

Pasta - 'Simply the Best'

The Italians have a passion for pasta.

They feel so strongly about their national dish they look upon its production as a craft and its consumption as a way of life. Pasta began to be taken seriously in New Zealand about five years ago. The pasta that appears on restaurant menus today is a far cry from Mum's Macaroni that many of us grew up with. There are two different types of pasta. Pasta Asciutta or dried pasta which has good shelf life, is mass produced and therefore cost effective. Pasta All'uovo or fresh pasta is made by hand and is currently considered fashionable food. The Italians only eat fresh pasta on special family occasions; it's production assuming Hollywood proportions.

"On The Menu" is a regular feature by Food Consultant Penny Oliver and is based on the programme of the same name.
Don't miss "On The Menu", SKY News Channel, Sundays at 11.30am.

The versatility of pasta has few culinary equals. The traditional rich tomato and cream sauces that often accompany pasta are well known and liked.

Newly educated palates and waistline watchers enthuse about pasta tossed with raw and grilled vegetables and uncooked sauces.

Quick preparation, cost effectiveness and versatility have contributed to pastas new popularity. Yet another outstanding quality of pasta is it's nutritional value. Sports teams have long since recognised pasta as an exceptional source of carbohydrate. Carbohydrate loading is often employed by sports teams in their buildup to a major event. The Winfield Cup teams playing in the Finals' Series on SKY this month will hopefully have done their dietary homework.

Spaghetti with Garlic Mushrooms, Tomatoes and Walnut Coriander Pesto

Serves 6
24 small flat field mushrooms
The juice of 1 lemon
1/4 cup olive oil
4 cloves garlic, crushed
Salt and pepper
3 acid free tomatoes
Salt, Pepper and Sugar
700 grams dried spaghetti
Oil for cooking

Lay the mushrooms, skin-side down in a shallow dish. Pour over the lemon juice and olive oil. Smear the mushrooms with the crushed garlic and season with salt and ground pepper. Ensure the mushrooms are all well coated with marinade. Cut the tomatoes into sixths and season with salt, ground pepper and a pinch of sugar. Lay the mushrooms and tomatoes on a grill. Grill the vegetables for 4 minutes each side and keep warm. Fill a large saucepan with plenty of water and bring it to a rolling boil. Add in a dash of oil. Cook the spaghetti in the boiling water until the spaghetti is al dente, or a little firm to the bite. (For every 500 grams of pasta use 4 litres of boiling water). Drain the pasta well (shaking out all the water). Add a dash of olive oil and shake it through the spaghetti.

Walnut Coriander Pesto

1 1/4 cups of tightly packed dry coriander leaves
2 cloves garlic, crushed
60 grams walnuts
1/2 - 3/4 cup of extra virgin olive oil
Juice of half a lemon
Salt and Pepper
Parmesan Cheese

Place the coriander leaves, garlic and walnuts in a food processor and mince the ingredients. With the motor running add the oil in a thin steady stream until you form a thick paste. Add the lemon juice. Season with salt and ground pepper.

To Assemble

Pile the spaghetti into serving bowls. Lay the mushrooms and tomatoes over the top of the spaghetti and spoon over the pesto. Garnish with a sprinkling of parmesan cheese. Serve with a crisp green salad and crusty bread.

DB NATURAL. NOTHING COMES BETWEEN YOU AND THE TASTE.

What gives this new beer such a unique taste? It's not pasteurised.

Instead, our master brewers have used a new method to preserve its quality, and full flavour.

DB Natural is carefully micro-filtered at sub-zero temperatures.

This removes any impurities.

But the difference is, none of the beer's original, natural flavour is lost.

This brewing breakthrough, combined with our unique fermentation process, is a world first from DB.

We call it 'Cellar Fresh'.

Because now, nothing comes between you and the taste.
